INTRODUCTION

Microlog: Canadian Research Index puts all of Canada's hard-to-find government and research literature at your fingertips. This monthly indexing, abstracting and document delivery service covers all levels of government in Canada, as well as institutions receiving research grants. Most titles included in Microlog are available in either paper or microfiche format. Combined with a microfiche collection, the Microlog Service is a powerful tool for finding Canadian report publications. The unique Microlog Accession Number is the key to immediate retrieval of any document.

SCOPE

Among other documents, Microlog includes research papers in physical, natural and social sciences, policy papers, important statistics, and annual reports. Every effort is made to ensure the currency of the index. For instance, documents appearing in the Checklist of Canadian Government Publications are delivered by Microlog approximately two months after publication of the list.

LANGUAGE POLICY

Documents issued in English or French are indexed and abstracted in the language of publication, while bilingual documents are indexed and abstracted in both languages.

SOURCES AND COVERAGE

Federal Documents: The Microlog editors review all checklists issued by the Canadian Government Publishing Centre and order every document relevant to the service. Except for serials, maps, pamphlets, and manuals, all monographs covered by the Federal Depository Plan are included in the index. Also, a special effort is made to track down elusive but important titles which do not appear in the lists.

Microlog offers a special collection of documents published by the Federal Government but not issued through the Federal Depository Plan. These titles, available to subscribers as the Non-Depository Publications collection, are indicated in the Titles section by a bullet (•). Microlog is also the direct distributing agent for many government bodies.

Provincial Documents: Depository arrangements with several provincial libraries have been established to ensure that Microlog subscribers receive all publications from those provinces. Where no depository arrangement exists, all publications lists issued by the province are reviewed for acquisitions.

Municipal Documents: Since these titles are very difficult to obtain, the Microlog editors make special efforts to include publications from municipal sources.

ACCESS

The Index provides access by subject, corporate or individual author, and series title.

The full Microlog file from 1979 to date, consisting of almost 50,000 records, is available online through Can/OLE. This is an ideal way to locate hard-to-find reports which may then be ordered directly online through the Can/DOCS service. Contact: Can/OLE Client Services, CISTI, Ottawa, Ontario, K1A 0S2.

FEATURES

Microlog comprises the following sections:

1. Titles and abstracts: A full bibliographic citation and a descriptive abstract for each title.

2. Name Index: Access by personal author, corporate author, and conference name.

3. Series Titles: Lists by title and number all reports in series in the service; series are available as an ongoing subscription or retrospective collection.

4. Subject Index: Descriptors based on Library of Congress and Canadiana Subject Headings are assigned to each document. A cross-referencing structure assists searchers.

5. Microfiche collections: Lists contents of each fiche collection for quick reference. These collections can be used as current awareness lists in broad subject areas to notify users of new acquisitions. This section is included in the annual cumulation as a separate fished product.

MICROLOG AND CANADIAN STATISTICS INDEX

Statistical Material: The Canadian Statistics Index (CSI) provides further access to statistical material contained in Microlog monographs and special or annual reports. The CSI identification number has been included with the Microlog citation for the convenience of subscribers to the CSI fiche collection.

Annual Reports: Storage of annual reports in a single sequence has been a problem for clients in the past. The CSI numbers for annual reports are now listed in the bibliographic citation and appear on the microfiche header of each report, to make such sequencing possible.

DOCUMENT DELIVERY

Institutions may subscribe to complete or partial collections of the documents in Microlog. Individual copies on microfiche or paper reprint may be ordered through Micromedia's Document Delivery Service. To order, please contact:

INTRODUCTION

Microlog: Index de recherche du Canada met à votre disposition toutes les publications du gouvernement et les travaux de recherche difficiles à se procurer. Combiné aux collections sur microfiches, le service Microlog constitue un outil très efficace pour retrouver les publications des différents gouvernements du Canada, ainsi que celles des organismes qui reçoivent des subventions pour la recherche. Microlog est aussi un service de livraison de documents, sur microfiches ou sous forme imprimée.

CONTENU

Microlog contient entre autres des recherches en sciences physiques, naturelles et sociales, des énoncés de politique, des statistiques et des rapports annuels. Par l'intermédiaire du service Microlog, on peut obtenir les documents qui figurent sur la Liste des publications du gouvernement du Canada environ deux mois après leur parution sur cette liste.

POLITIQUE LINGUISTIQUE

SOURCES

Publications fédérales: Les rédacteurs de Microlog examinent les listes émises par le Centre d'édition du gouvernement du Canada et commandent les documents pertinents. En dehors des publications en série, cartes, brochures et manuels, toutes les monographies régies par le Programme de dépôt du gouvernement fédéral figurent dans l'index, ainsi que des ouvrages importants ne figurant pas sur les listes.

Microlog propose aussi une collection spéciale de publications fédérales non déposées, identifiées par un point (●) dans la section Titres et résumés. Microlog est aussi l'agent de diffusion de nombreux organismes gouvernementaux.

Publications provinciales: Des ententes de dépôt ont été conclues avec plusieurs bibliothèques provinciales pour que les abonnés de Microlog reçoivent toutes les publications de ces provinces. Lorsqu'aucune entente n'existe, les listes de publications émises par les provinces sont examinées afin d'acquiescer les documents.

Publications municipales: Ces ouvrages étant difficiles à se procurer, les rédacteurs de Microlog redoublent d'ardeur pour les inclure dans l'index.

ACCÈS

L'index Imprimé est bilingue et les publications sont répertoriées par sujet, par auteur (collectivité et personne physique) et par titre de collection.

Le fichier complet de Microlog, de 1979 à aujourd'hui, contient près de 50,000 notices et est accessible sur

Can/OLE. Il s'agit d'un moyen idéal pour mettre la main sur des rapports difficiles à trouver qu'on peut commander par l'intermédiaire du service Can/DOCS. À ce propos, veuillez vous adresser au Service à la clientèle Can/OLE, ICIST, Ottawa (Ontario), K1A 0S2.

ORGANISATION DE L'INDEX

Microlog est divisé en cinq sections:

1. Titres et résumés: tous les titres sont catalogués et accompagnés d'un résumé descriptif.

2. Index des noms: donne un accès par auteur, collectivité-auteur et titre de conférence.

3. Titres de collections: tous les rapports publiés en série sont classés par titre et numéro. Ces collections peuvent être commandées individuellement.

4. Index des matières: les descripteurs permettent de trouver facilement les publications pertinentes; un réseau de renvois facilite la recherche.

5. Collections de microfiches: chaque collection apparaît dans une section séparée pour faciliter la recherche. Ces listes peuvent aussi servir à renseigner les usagers sur les nouveautés. Dans la refonte, cette section est insérée sous forme de microfiches.

MICROLOG ET L'INDEX DES STATISTIQUES DU CANADA

Données statistiques: L'Index des statistiques du Canada (CSI) constitue une autre source de référence sur les statistiques contenues dans certaines publications indexées dans Microlog. Celles-ci ont un numéro d'ordre spécial qui est inclus dans la référence bibliographique.

Rapports annuels: Afin de rendre le classement des rapports annuels plus facile, le numéro d'ordre CSI correspondant à ces documents figure maintenant dans les références bibliographiques et est inscrit sur les en-têtes de microfiches.

LIVRAISON DE DOCUMENTS

On peut s'abonner à l'ensemble ou à certaines des collections de documents de Microlog. On peut également commander des reproductions de documents sur microfiches ou sur papier par l'intermédiaire du service de livraison de documents de Micromedia. Pour commander, communiquer avec:

Sample CRI Search

"How can a person from a foreign country qualify for refugee status in Canada?"

The researcher can search in CRI as in any library catalogue - by subject, author and title.
Because the index is bilingual, searching can be done in English or in French.

Recherche type avec IRC

"Comment une personne d'un pays étranger peut-elle demander le statut de réfugié au Canada?"

La méthode de recherche dans IRC est la même que dans une bibliothèque, puisque les documents sont indexés par auteur, par sujet et par titre. L'index étant bilingue, la consultation peut se faire en français ou en anglais.

Aerial surveys of nearctic shorebirds wintering in Mexico : preliminary results of surveys of the southern half of the Pacific coast, states of Chiapas to Sinaloa

MICROLOG 95-01677 (1 fiche)

The extensive coastal zone of Mexico contains a number of wetlands that support internationally important concentrations of waterfowl and shorebirds. The Mexican Shorebird Atlas project was designed as a three-year program to obtain knowledge of the wintering distribution of shorebirds on the coastline of Mexico, a key requirement for future conservation planning. This report presents preliminary results of the third and final year of the project, involving aerial surveys of the southern half of the Pacific coast from the border with Guatemala to the state of Sinaloa. Aerial surveys of the Gulf of Mexico and Caribbean coastlines of Mexico were carried out from 12-19 February 1994. Numbers of shorebirds were determined by direct counting when flocks were small or by visual estimation when larger concentrations were encountered. Identifications were made at the species level where possible.

In May 1991, the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development assumed responsibility for the administration of the Air Stage Subsidy Program and in August 1991 announced changes to the structure and application of the program that would be implemented in two phases in October 1991 and October 1992. The changes were intended to permit all isolated northern communities to qualify for the subsidy, to gradually implement a uniform rate for all regions, and to favour nutritious perishable foods. The amount of the subsidy would remain at its current level of $15 million per year and the department would monitor the effect of the changes on food prices, consumption, nutrition, and health. This report presents the impact of changes to the air stage subsidy during phase I and II on food prices in selected northern communities.

In 1991, the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development assumed responsibility for the administration of the air stage subsidy program that subsidizes food to isolated communities in northern Quebec and changed prices. The department initiated a monitoring program to evaluate the impact of the price changes on food prices, food consumption, nutrition, and health. This report presents the results of food consumption survey of women aged 15-45 to determine the impact of the price changes on consumption, health, and nutritional status. The report examined relevant information from the Sante Quebec Inuit Health Survey and compared the results to findings reported for other Inuit communities in the study.

The involvement of alcohol in motor vehicle accidents has been the subject of much public attention in recent years in Saskatchewan and elsewhere, but alcohol and drug involvement in non-traffic accidents, particularly occurring during leisure time or recreational activity, has received relatively little attention. This study examined the associations between fatal nontraffic accidents and alcohol using data from the Coroner's office for 385 accidental deaths in the province in 1986 and 1987. Causes were categorized as drowning, falls, fires, overdose or poisoning, farm and industrial accidents, asphyxia, exposure, carbon monoxide poisoning, and other methods. For each category, alcohol and drug involvement and other factors are described, particularly as they relate to Native Indians. The implications of the findings for injury prevention are discussed.

Study to determine whether the germination inhibitors abscisic acid and coumarin could be applied to black spruce and jack pine seed with organic solvents to delay germination. If successful, the treatment would delay field germination of seeds sown in mid to late summer until the following spring, thus reducing the risk of immature plants being affected by late fall frosts. Results were expressed in germination value, peak day, and germination capacity on the basis of a 28-day germination period. Effects of treatment on the variables were examined by means of one-way or two-way analysis of variance with completely randomized designs. CA FO LS ND ON SC

L'essence de l'apprentissage permanent et organisationnel consiste à rechercher et à cultiver la vérité au sein des organisations. Les organisations qui réussissent semblent être celles qui sont en mesure de favoriser l'apprentissage tant sur le plan individuel qu'au niveau de l'organisation dans son ensemble. Ce document présente le rapport du Centre canadien de gestion sur l'apprentissage permanent. CA DE ED LA SS

Arrow timber supply area : timber supply review discussion paper

Victoria : Ministry of Forests, 1994. 13 p. : ill. MICROLOG 95-01462 (1 fiche)

The British Columbia Forest Service is conducting a timber supply review in the 36 timber supply areas (TSAs) and 35 tree farm licence areas throughout the province to identify the economic, environmental, and social consequences of existing forest management practices; identify where improved information is required to make reliable forecasts; and provide information to make necessary adjustments to the allowable annual cut (AAC) for the next five years. This discussion paper summarizes the technical reports from the timber supply review in the Arrow TSA, including a description of the Arrow TSA, the current AAC, and the socio-economic aspects of the area; current management practices; a timber supply forecast and impacts of the base case; critical factors; and factors to be examined in other planning processes. This analysis is part of the provincial timber supply review being carried out to examine the short and long-term effects of current forest management practices on the availability of timber for harvesting in timber supply areas (TSAs) in British Columbia. This report focuses on current management practices. It describes the Arrow TSA; data preparation and formulation of assumptions; analysis methodology and results; and the sensitivity of the results to uncertainties in the data and assumptions used. The appendix contains further details about the data and assumptions used in the analysis. BC FO PR SC ST

Study to estimate the size of the present and future biomass resources in Saskatchewan that could be used on a sustainable basis, and with acceptable environmental effects, as sources for process heat, electricity generation, and transport fuels and the costs of production and preparation of these biomass resources for use as energy raw materials; provide information on the energy budgets of selected biomass systems; and estimate the full range of environmental impacts of feedstock production. The study addressed croplands and agricultural wastes, forested lands, peat resources, and municipal waste. Appendices include the current market value of hay and straw, alternative crops and cropping systems for bioenergy production in Western Canada, ethanol production for transportation fuels, and crop production by soil zones in the three Prairie provinces.

Preliminary study to assess the overall potential for the generation of electric power by wind in southwestern Saskatchewan. The study used wind data from the Atmospheric Environment Service for the relevant meteorologic stations, terrain data from the National Topographic Series of maps, and electric power transmission information from SaskPower. The wind data were processed and summarized and, along with the maps, gave a wind map of the region. Power curves and costing information were obtained for a number of wind turbines. The overall wind map, power generation information for the Bonus 300 wind turbine, and electric grid information were correlated to determine an overall technical potential. Electric grid information was correlated with the terrain information and overall wind regime data to determine preliminary design parameters for plausible wind farm configurations. The costing information for the wind turbines was used in conjunction with ancillary costing information to determine the total installed and projected operational costs.

This report is a comprehensive analysis of the Atlantic economy that provides a fact-base to develop and evaluate public and private sector initiative at both provincial and regional levels. The report begins with an overview of the general economic considerations of the area and the industry structure, focusing on food producing, forest-based products, mining and minerals, diversified manufacturing, information products and services, and business travel and tourism. It then discusses each of these sectors, giving a sector profile and describing market forces, retraining and technology needed, as well as improvements in infrastructure and financing. A final chapter addresses the economic infrastructure and public policy, including human resources, technology infrastructure, quality of life, tax and fiscal, and regulatory aspects.

What happens in our schools is important for the future of our children, our region and our country. We are all dependent on the quality of the education provided to our youth. The education departments of the four Atlantic provinces, through a process of consultation, are creating a set of statements describing what students are expected to know and be able to do by the time they graduate from high school. Called graduation outcomes, these statements are intended to provide clear guidelines of what schools are expected to accomplish in educating students. Attached to this discussion paper on graduation outcomes is a response guide.

La première partie de ce rapport donne un aperçu du mandat du ministère de la Justice en matière de vulgarisation et d'information juridiques. Suivent un exposé sur la situation de nombreuses immigrantes maltraitées par leurs conjoints et un inventaire de leurs besoins d'information juridique, assorti de stratégies visant à y répondre et fondées sur les constatations tirées d'une analyse de la documentation existante. La deuxième partie propose les grandes lignes d'une brochure destinée aux immigrantes, qui pourrait être publiée dans chacune des langues des communautés ethniques comptant beaucoup d'immigrés de fraîche date. La dernière partie du rapport est une analyse commentée des documents de vulgarisation et d'information juridiques et d'autres ouvrages sur l'agression contre l'épouse. Ce travail est axé sur les ouvrages qui répondent aux préoccupations des immigrantes, tout en s'efforçant d'englober ceux qui pourraient se servir avec profit les chercheurs qui élaborent des documents de vulgarisation et d'information juridiques pour ce groupe de femmes.

This catalogue provides convenient access to the various kinds of approaches that have proven successful in addressing the issues pertinent to particular target groups. An effort has been made to provide examples from every region across Canada which are broadly illustrative of the particular types of program thrusts emphasized by the various jurisdictions across Canada. Programs have been selected to provide a balanced mix of factors such as urban v. rural settings, large v. small in scope, well-established, proven practices v. innovative state-of-the-art developments. The focus is on the secondary school level, and on individuals currently attending school, although a small number of early intervention and re-entry programs have been included in particular categories. Particular examples have been selected to identify programming specifically designed to serve target groups of various kinds, such as women, aboriginal youth, young offenders, dropouts, and students at risk of not graduating, as well as programming targeted at the entire population of high school students.

The Smoky Head-White Bluff Area of Natural and Scientific Interest (ANSI) is one of the significant life science natural areas identified in 1976 in the Niagara Escarpment Plan Area. In the 1992 and 1993 field seasons, a detailed biological inventory and evaluation of the ANSI was carried out involving 47 person days of field work. This report describes the physical background of the region and the regional context of vegetation, flora, and fauna; the vegetation, flora and floristics, and fauna of the Smoky Head-White Bluff area; and planning considerations, including an evaluation of the ANSI, its significant features, and recommendations. Lists of vascular plants, mosses and liverworts, birds, mammals, and amphibians and reptiles are given along with a description of the methodology and the Niagara Escarpment vegetation community classification system.

This report begins with proposals on three social programs that are highlighted in the discussion paper. There is a proposal for a new program of work income supplements for families with children that could be the centrepiece of the federal government's commitment to eliminating child poverty. The next chapter urges the federal, provincial and territorial governments to renegotiate the terms of the Canada Assistance Plan to ensure reasonable support for people in need, a range of social services, and an end to disincentives to work in the welfare system. The chapter on unemployment insurance looks at the two main approaches to reform outlined in the discussion paper and recommends that the federal government proceed cautiously. The following two chapters contain recommendations on economic and fiscal matters which are intimately tied to social security reform. It emphasizes the importance of creating good jobs as the key to the well-being of the millions of Canadian families and individuals who would gladly choose self-reliance to reliance on programs such as welfare and unemployment insurance. There are also proposals for coping with the cost of social security at a time when governments across the country are struggling for money and searching for ways to reduce their deficits.

Le Canada atlantique a toujours été présent dans l'histoire du Canada et de l'Amérique du Nord, et y a tenu un rôle important. Pendant la grande part du XXe siècle, cependant, son expansion économique a été restreinte par les conditions et les influences internes et externes. Ces conditions globales ont annulé en bonne partie l'effet des meilleurs efforts déployés par le gouvernement fédéral et les provinces en vue de mettre en valeur le potentiel économique réel de la région. On trouvera dans ce rapport une analyse exhaustive de l'économie de l'Atlantique qui pourra servir à l'élaboration et à l'évaluation de mesures mises de l'avant par les secteurs public et privé, à l'échelon provincial et fédéral, pour stimuler l'économie de l'Atlantique.

Roseate Terns are seabirds that breed in North America from the Iles de la Madeleine in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, south to New York, and in the West Indies. Canada is at the northern limit of their breeding range and has about 3% of the population. This recovery plan is a response to the designation by the Committee on the Status of Endangered Wildlife in Canada in 1986 of the Roseate Tern as a threatened species in Canada. The document describes the species, its life history, and feeding habits; and evaluates its current status, including factors affecting its vulnerability, its ecosystem role and interactions with humans, and its recovery potential in Canada. It then describes the recovery strategy and implementation.

Health care systems throughout the developed world are currently mainly funded through various forms of taxation, with user charges a secondary source of revenue. Alternate ways of assembling revenues transfer net income from the less to the more healthy and wealthy and are an inevitable feature of any increase in user charges. This paper explores the transfer process by setting up an accounting framework that explicitly represents (algebraically) each individual, as well as each type of health service and each form of payment. This formal framework can then show the distributional consequences of substituting more user charges for tax finance. The paper also considers integrating user charges with taxes and tax credits.

Ottawa : Dept. of Finance, 1994. x, 92, xi, 103 p. : ill. Bilingual (Instaurer un...). MICROLOG 95-01719 (3 fiche)

This document addresses the importance of creating a healthy fiscal climate as a precondition for durable growth and job creation. The requirement for prudence in the planning assumptions used to derive the deficit forecast is discussed. The document presents updated economic assumptions for the period 1994 to 1996. It also presents the fiscal outlook under updated economic scenarios. It addresses the question of how to get back on track. To what extent should program spending reductions be relied on? Is there scope for new revenue-raising measures? The document sets out certain questions that are submitted to the standing committee on finance of the House of Commons as part of the budget consultation process. To provide the basic background information needed to address these questions, and to assess the tough trade-offs, detailed descriptions of government spending and revenues are provided in the annexes.

Plusieurs techniques servent à corriger le problème du retour à la moyenne qui, comme on l'a laissé entendre, pourrait se traduire par la conclusion erronée que les petits établissements créent un nombre disproportionné de nouveaux emplois. L'étude conclut que le nombre net de nouveaux emplois créés pour les petits établissements est plus élevé que celui des grands établissements lorsqu'on apporte ces corrections. L'étude compare aussi l'importance des petits et des grands établissements du secteur de la fabrication du Canada et des États-Unis.

This document looks at deficit reduction. Topics covered are: debating deficit reduction; the distortionary effect of rising taxes; Ricardian equivalence; government deficits; government deficits, debt, and the business cycle; the macroeconomics of government budget cuts; government debt and deficits in Canada; and, debt reduction with distorting taxes and incomplete Ricardianism.

La distribution du crabe commun le long des côtes québécoises a été examinée dans le but de décrire son patron de migration saisonnière. Plus spécifiquement, nous voulions vérifier l'hypothèse selon laquelle le crabe commun effectuerait des déplacements bathymétriques saisonniers l'amenant à être concentré en eau peu profonde au printemps, et à se disperser au cours de l'été. Une pêche par casier a été réalisée en 1991, au large d'Anse-à-Beaufils au cours des mois d'avril, août, septembre et octobre. D'autres observations ont aussi été effectuées au printemps à Carleton, ainsi qu'à Caraquet et Ste-Marie-sur-mer au Nouveau-Brunswick. L'étude a été réalisée à l'aide de casiers de type japonais, de forme conique. Des données ont également été recueillies à l'aide d'un chalut à bâton en et sous-marine.

Does occupational exposure to dust prevent colorectal cancer?

By Murray M. Finkelstein. Toronto : Ministry of Labour, Health and Safety Studies Unit, 1994. iii, 18 p. : Bibl.
MICROLOG 95-01854 (1 fiche)

The original Ontario Miners Cohort Study concluded that stomach cancer increased among gold miners but overall mortality from digestive system cancer was less than expected because of fewer colorectal cancers. This literature review was conducted to investigate occupational associations with cancers of the intestinal tract (stomach, colon, rectum) in hard rock miners, quarry, and granite workers. English language papers published from 1966-94 were identified, along with government reports and conference proceedings in the collection of the Ontario Ministry of Labour library. The statistical significance of differences between observed and expected mortality was assessed using the Poisson distribution of Chi-squared tests. Tests of heterogeneity of SMRs were carried out using the Breslow and Day method. Results are given for gold, uranium, fluorspar, copper and nickel, iron, tin, and miscellaneous ores in Canada and internationally, as well as for granite and quarry workers, and dusty trades workers. An appendix addresses cancer in Ontario hard rock miners.

Because the ideal planting season extends only from the end of April to the middle of May, its extension is highly desirable because of manpower and equipment factors as well as location of plant-

To determine if overwinter cold storage could be as effective for other hardwood species as it appears to be for sugar maple, cold-stored and fresh-lifted black walnut, red oak, and silver maple seedlings were planted at two-week intervals from 21 April to 16 June 1981. Electoral systems establish the "rules of the game" for political contests. For the most part, these rules appear to be neutral. Upon closer examination, however, it is apparent that Canada's electoral rules are not neutral toward women. In comparison to a proportional representation system, Canada's single-member plurality electoral system is much less favourable to the entry of women into the political system. The purpose of this paper is to review the aspects of Canada's single-member plurality electoral system that work against the election of women and to consider the potential of other electoral systems to achieve outcomes that reflect the diversity of Canadian society.

Cette étude examine l'hypothèse du surendettement du secteur privé, selon laquelle les ménages et les entreprises se trouvent en certaines circonstances surendettés et décident, pour cette raison, de réduire leurs dettes en diminuant leurs dépenses. On tente de déterminer si cette hypothèse peut contribuer à expliquer la faiblesse de la croissance du crédit et l'atonie de la récente reprise économique au Canada. Le document examine l'hypothèse du surendettement à l'aide de trois approches. La première vise à vérifier l'existence de relations de cointégration entre les ratios d'endettement effectifs des ménages et des entreprises et les variables macroéconomiques (et démographiques) qui déterminent les ratios d'endettement de long terme. Les deux autres approches consistent à vérifier si les écarts entre l'endettement effectif et l'endettement de long terme des ménages et des entreprises ont des effets significatifs sur leur demande de crédit, d'une part, et sur leurs dépenses, d'autre part. This paper presents a model to evaluate urban transportation network performance in the event of accidents, under information conditions provided to the users. The model, called the 3T model, considers the period of time before the accident, a transition period during which an increasing number of users will be informed of the accident, and a new equilibrium period. Accident removal was not considered. An algorithm was designed and implemented using the EMME/2 package. Results were obtained on a test network representing the links between downtown Montreal and the South Shore suburbs. Accidents were studied on bridges linking the downtown area to the South Shore.

The alewife and the blueback herring are anadromous fish of the Clupeidae family that are collectively known as gaspereau in eastern Canada, where they are of value to commercial fisheries in Atlantic Canada. This study provides information on the number of juvenile gaspereau produced by a known number of adults transferred to a freshwater lake for spawning. The size of the juveniles at emigration and the temporal distribution of emigration is also reported. Adults of the two species were transferred to Giant Lake, a headwater lake of the South River system that is not normally accessible to anadromous fish species because of a natural barrier located downstream.

The Global Positioning System (GPS), developed from 1973-78, is rapidly becoming a positioning and navigation tool for a very broad spectrum of industry as well as the general public. In summer 1992, the North Nova Forest Owners Co-operative Ltd. (NNFO) evaluated an entry-level GPS receiver, the Trimble TransPak II, as a positioning tool for use by foresters and forest technicians in woodland management for the small, private forest management program. The project evaluated the receiver for ease of use; inherent accuracy; effect of forest canopy; determination of the size, shape, and geographic location of woodlots and treatment areas; and determination of the geographic location and course of woods roads. The evaluations included the use of the receiver in the field plus the development of techniques and procedures to use the raw GPS data.

The Telecommunications and Broadcasting Policy Unit of the Saskatchewan Department of the Provincial Secretary was asked to examine the issues related to allowing competition into the Saskatchewan long distance telecommunications service market. This discussion paper represents a draft position on whether long distance competition should be allowed, and if so, the appropriate terms and conditions under which potential competitors would interconnect with SaskTel. The paper describes the historical view of telecommunications; policy objectives; basic principles of long distance competition; the Federal Government competition model; and the Saskatchewan proposal. A discussion of the proposal terms and conditions includes information on entry, network interconnection, subsidies from long distance services to offset revenue shortfall associated with providing local access services, recovery of start-up costs and additional costs, balloting for consumer choice of carrier, and administration.

Franchising plays an important role in the Canadian economy and continues to grow in importance. It is most widespread in retail trade where it now accounts for about 30 percent of sales. Franchised businesses are also assuming a greater role in the delivery of accommodation, restaurant, personal, household and business services. This publication is designed to help in the education process and provides a network of information sources on franchising including associations, professional and government services, trade shows and conferences, and publications. It is intended for firms interested in expanding their business through franchising, as well as for individuals who want to buy a franchise.

The purpose of this paper is twofold: to describe the evolution of the unemployment insurance program and the social and economic context in which the present system operates; and to provide a broad range of options which could be considered in reforming the system. The aim is not to offer a set of pre-determined changes to the program, but to look at the implications of different directions for reform in terms of policy objectives, cost, persons affected and consequences for other programs.

Geochemical mapping is a component of environmental science that is rapidly growing in importance worldwide. This project explores the feasibility of producing a geochemical map of Ontario (GMO) based on data obtained at 10 km intervals from 10 km wide corridors located along each of 21 meridians that cross the province at one degree (about 60 km) intervals. This project developed and tested a low density geochemical mapping approach to demonstrate the feasibility of identifying patterns for mineral exploration and environmental geochemistry. This report describes the methodology and presents the results of a preliminary statistical analysis and a bivariate statistical analysis and a visual pattern analysis of geochemical data. Appendices provide water geochemistry data listings, sediment and soil geochemical data listings, quality control diagrams, Meridian Clarke diagrams, and scatter plots and correlation matrices.

Urban areas present an intense mixture of economic activities and extend over a vast territory. Conventionally, land uses were classified according to a set of criteria in a belong or does-not-belong perspective. This paper addresses issues in the representation of knowledge on functional land use, advocating that land use can be conceived as declarative geographical knowledge about an urban system and using a simple semantic network to encode it. It develops an heuristic procedure of classification where a spatial entity has membership values to land uses. The assignment of a membership value applies elements of fuzzy logic through fuzzy numbers in classification rules. Shanghai, as a complex intra-urban system, is used as a case study to test the methodology in the representation and analysis of geographical systems. PL PR PS QU SC

In 1993, the Geological Survey of Canada began a hydrogeological program to delineate and characterize major aquifers in Canada and to assemble the characterizations into a widely available database. The program began with projects in the Oak Ridges Moraine north of Toronto and the Lower Mainland of British Columbia. This report describes a cone penetration study conducted in and adjacent to the Brookwood and Abbotsford aquifers, in the municipalities of Surrey, Langley, and Matsqui to establish the utility of cone penetrometry for acquiring detailed information on aquifer and aquitard architecture. A new system for in situ measuring of hydraulic conductivity, developed by the University of B.C. In Situ Testing Group, was also tested. Test sites were chosen to complement data collected during ground penetrating radar studies in 1993. In some cases, cone penetration sites were chosen close to stratigraphic test drilling (conductivity, magnetic susceptibility, and gamma logs available) and piezometer installations, plus electromagnetic surveys and seismic surveys conducted in 1994.

Bon nombre de questions sont liées à la politique canadienne à l'égard des réfugiés. Ce bulletin est axé sur le rapport étroit qui existe depuis longtemps entre une préoccupation essentiellement humanitaire, à savoir l'accueil et l'établissement de ceux qui ne peuvent retourner dans leur mère patrie pour quelque raison que ce soit, et une considération foncièrement intéressée ou pragmatique, la politique d'immigration. Il doit y avoir un rapport entre la politique à l'égard des réfugiés et la politique d'immigration. Ce document cherche à savoir jusqu'à quel point les critères de la politique d'immigration devraient s'appliquer à la sélection à l'étranger des réfugiés qui souhaitent venir s'installer au Canada.

On March 26 and 27, 1994, the Society promoting environmental conservation hosted a workshop for public interest, environmental and native groups, sponsored by the British Columbia Energy Council and the British Columbia Utilities Commission. The workshop was designed to present information on various aspects of public participation in energy planning and to receive feedback and input on the current British Columbia public participant assistance policy. Approximately 40 people participated in the workshop. Representatives from all areas of British Columbia attended. The panels included speakers from all sectors of the energy industry, government, environmental and public interest groups. Transcripts from four of the speakers are included in this report which gives and indication of the level of discussion and detail necessary to undertake consultation and receive appropriate levels of effective participation.

Il existe peu de données sur ces types d'initiatives en milieu de travail canadien. Les profils que propose ce rapport visent à combler cette lacune. Par conséquent, ils devraient intéresser les intervenants du monde des relations industrielles, les gestionnaires des ressources humaines, les syndicalistes ainsi que les propriétaires exploitant de petites entreprises. La nécessité de faire preuve de prudence dans les hypothèses de planification qui servent à établir les prévisions de déficit est exposée à la section 2. La section suivante présente des hypothèses économiques mises à jour pour la période 1994-1996. On expose ensuite les perspectives d'évolution des finances publiques à la lumière de la mise à jour des hypothèses économiques. On aborde la question des moyens à prendre pour ramener le déficit sur la trajectoire voulue. Dans quelle mesure faut-il recourir à des réductions de dépenses? Dans quelle mesure peut-on augmenter de nouveau les recettes? La section suivante présente certaines questions sur lesquelles le Comité permanent des finances de la Chambre des communes doit se pencher dans le cadre du processus de consultation budgétaire. Afin de fournir les renseignements de base nécessaires à l'étude de ces questions et à l'évaluation des choix difficiles qui doivent être faits, les annexes fournissent une description détaillée des dépenses et des recettes fédérales.

As part of an overall policy to promote the adoption of integrated pest management (IPM) in British Columbia, the Pesticide Management Program has been conducting studies to find out the degree to which IPM concepts are currently used. This study provides an overview of IPM use in agriculture as of 1993. Information was collected from telephone interviews and written reports from the provincial government, from growers' association and packing house field staff, from researchers at Agriculture Canada and Simon Fraser University, and from companies in the private sector. Information compiled from three years of annual surveys of IPM consultants in the province is also summarized. Appendices summarized agricultural IPM research from 1991-93 in B.C. and at Simon Fraser University. AG BC LS PR SC

Study to provide considerations related to life extension of Queen Elizabeth #1 and #2 units and Boundary Dam #1 and #2 units and to examine, in detail, some life extension opportunities for Queen Elizabeth #3 unit and Boundary Dam units #3, #4, #5, and #6. For the Boundary Dam units, the costs, emissions, solid wastes, and water use are estimated to assist in the consideration of the economic and environmental factors in analyzing the future generation needs for Saskatchewan. Information was obtained from key management at SaskPower and documentation on the main equipment at the two stations. A review of the North American experience with life extension is included, focusing on Hydro Edison, Duke Power Co., and Manitoba Hydro.

Dans le cadre de ce projet, trois objectifs étaient visés. Il s'agissait de : vérifier si les conditions d'utilisation des appareils GPS (Global Positioning System) durant l'exploitation forestière permettent de localiser les abatteuses en tout temps; identifier et trouver une solution aux divers problèmes de localisation GPS qui pourraient être rencontrés lors d'opérations forestières régulières; et, si les deux premiers objectifs ont été atteints, élaborer un schéma de système de localisation par GPS des coupes forestières adapté à un cadre d'utilisation en production, et donner un ordre de grandeur des coûts associés à l'utilisation d'un tel système. La suite du document explique brièvement les notions de base de fonctionnement du GPS ainsi que les divers équipements et méthodes utilisés dans ce projet. This paper proposes a new graph theoretic framework for the passenger assignment problem that encompasses simultaneously the departure time and route choice. The implicit FIFO access to transit lines is captured with the concept of available capacity. This notion of flow priority has never been taken into account explicitly in previous models. Two mathematical formulations of the traffic equilibrium model are described and a procedure for the computation of a user-optimal flow on large scale network is suggested.

Les Multinationales comme agents du changement : définition d'une nouvelle politique canadienne en matière d'investissement étranger direct

Comment les grandes entreprises canadiennes réagissent-elles à ces changements et quels faits devraient-elles présenter aux responsables de la politique en matière d'investissement direct étranger? Ce document tente de répondre à ces questions. Dans un bref historique, le document retrace la façon dont le Canada traite l'investissement direct étranger depuis 1960, ainsi que la création de relations économiques en étoile avec les États-Unis. L'enquête souligne la profonde intégration des économies canadienne et américaine, et fait valoir que cette intégration s'accroît encore davantage et prendra plusieurs formes, compte tenu des accords commerciaux régionaux qui ont été conclus.

Alors que le Canada avait une forme d'agence de l'examen de l'investissement étranger et, en particulier, des fusions des entreprises étrangères depuis le milieu des années 70, l'importance de ces fusions a rarement été analysée. Ce document essaie de corriger cette lacune. Il débute par un examen de son importance en replaçant l'intensité des fusions dans le contexte des autres mouvements tels que les entrées et les sorties et les comment au secteur intérieur. Le document examine ensuite dans quelle mesure les fusions sont associées aux variations de la productivité et des taux salariaux. Enfin, on se demande si les différences entre les entreprises nationales et étrangères ne se rattachent pas à l'environnement dans lequel les deux groupes existent ou à des différences intrinsèques entre les deux types d'entreprises qui ne sont pas expliquées par les caractéristiques des branches où elles se trouvent.

How are the biggest firms in Canada responding to these changes, and what responses should they evoke from the makers of foreign direct investment policy? This paper seeks to answer these questions. A brief historical summary traces Canada's treatment of foreign direct investment from 1960 to the present and the development of a "hub-and-spoke" economic relationship between Canada and the United States. The survey points to the deep integration of the Canadian and U.S. economies and suggests that this integration will become even more extensive and multifaceted as a result of regional trading agreements.

The outline of this report is as follows: the first section sets out a framework for the evaluation including potential outcome measures. Section 3 describes potential methods of evaluation. Particular examples, in terms of estimating probabilities of different outcomes, are described to highlight the relevance and importance of multivariate analysis. In addition, the use of case studies to measure more subjective outcomes is suggested. Section 4 describes the baseline data required, the formation of the control group and some indication of the relationship and potential comparison between the NB Works project and the self-sufficiency project. The concluding section considers some options for the development of the second phase, more detailed evaluation plan.

This analysis is part of the province-wide timber supply review being carried out to examine the availability of timber for harvesting in timber supply areas (TSAs) throughout British Columbia under current forest management practices. This review includes the consideration of physical, biological, social, and economic factors. The report assesses the major impacts of four harvest forecasts within a multiple accounts framework. Impacts are defined according to six accounts: three TSA accounts of economic development, community, and specific First Nations concerns; and three provincial accounts of economic development, environmental values, and government revenues. Non-TSA community values are also discussed because of significant non-TSA employment associated with the North Coast TSA allowable cut.

This paper presents the results of a detailed investigation of the tectonic setting and origin of ultramafic and related rocks in the Atlin area. The Atlin area was selected for detailed study because of its excellent road access, the large number of listwanite-related lode gold occurrences, and the extensive exploration database available for many of these occurrences. Following detailed mapping of the ultramafic rocks underlying the town of Atlin and Monarch Mountain in 1989, the area was revisited in 1990 and the map area extended to establish tectonic relationships between the ultramafic and surrounding lithologies. The phase chemistry of the harzburgite and associated dunite were investigated and are used to establish the origin of the units. Whole-rock major, trace, and rare-earth element chemistry is presented for basaltic rocks spatially associated with the ultramafics. These data are used to place constraints on the paleotectonic eruptive setting of the unit and to model the character of the mantle source from which the rocks were derived.

Canada's commitment to the action plan developed by the 1990 World Summit for Children is a federal/provincial partnership process that will enable communities to develop a continuum of integrated programs that promote the optimal health and social development of children at risk and their families from preconception through prenatal, infancy, and early childhood periods. As part of the implementation of programs in Alberta, preparatory work is needed to ensure coordinated programs. This background document reviews programs and interventions that have shown success with high risk children and their families; analyzes government and community services currently available in Alberta for high risk children aged 0-6 and their families; and develops criteria for assessment of future proposals, focussing on the defined critical factors and strategies, service models and rationale, outcome criterion, and outcome evaluation.

The science and technology needed to provide the understanding of spray drift and deposit of pest control products applied by air or by ground has evolved over many years. This technical session was put together to provide an overview of the science as it has developed, including some background on what precipitated the effort to understand pest control product spray drift and deposit; the principles of spray drift and deposit; some information on models and modelling; the use of models to predict appropriate buffer zones given a biological end point; and operational approaches to improve targeting of pest control product applications.

Study to establish a palynological zonation that could be used to correlate Permian and Lower Triassic strata within the Sverdrup Basin. Nine outcrop sections were sampled, including all the type sections of the formations studied. Material was collected from both shallow and deep basinal facies to make palynological correlations across lithofacies boundaries. The ages of the three palynological zones established were based mainly on ages determined from marine macro and microfossils groups, especially ammonoids, brachiopods, and conodonts. Palynostratigraphic comparisons were made with other parts of the world, including the Kazanian stratotype of Russia.

This paper presents and analyzes parallel implementations of bounding procedures for multicommodity capacitated network design problems. Experiments on a wide variety of problems are conducted on three different environments. The paper assesses the relative merits of these architectures when used to solve the problems, and shows that the parallel implementations can significantly alleviate the task of solving large-size realistic instances with millions of variables and thousands of commodities.

L'observation statistique selon laquelle les petites entreprises ont créé la majorité des nouveaux emplois au cours des années 1980 a eu une incidence énorme sur la politique officielle. Ce document aborde la question dans un sens assez étroit. Plus précisément, les sujets abordés sont : la pertinence des données utilisées pour ce genre d'analyse; l'incidence sur les résultats de l'utilisation d'autres méthodes de mesure de la taille des entreprises, notamment les méthodes utilisées par Davis, Hattiwanger et Schuh; la différence dans les résultats selon qu'on analyse la variation nette du nombre d'emplois sur une courte période ou sur une longue période; si les résultats s'appliquent à tous les grands secteurs d'activité et si la croissance rapide de l'emploi dans les secteurs d'activité qui englobent une forte proportion de petites entreprises explique en partie l'importance croissante des petites entreprises; et, si les petites entreprises existantes créent des emplois plus rapidement que les grandes entreprises existantes.

Report of a five-year study undertaken in the Clay Belt Region to investigate fire behaviour on prescribed burns in the boreal mixedwood slash fuel type. No quantitative information was available on prescribed burning in boreal mixedwood slash in Ontario and a lack of prescribed burning guidelines resulted in some failures in past burns conducted in this fuel type. The relationship between fire weather as expressed by the component codes and indices of the Canadian Forest Fire Weather Index system and fire behaviour and fuel consumption measured on the burns were evaluated in detail. The study was carried out during summers 1979-83 in the District of Kapuskasing. New sites were selected each year so that experimental burns were always conducted in fresh slash less than one year old. On all sites, tree-length harvesting had taken place the previous autumn or winter.

Each year, the Manitoba Bureau of Statistics conducts a survey to collect, tabulate and disseminate current information on the cost of food items in the form of average commodity prices as well as comparisons to Winnipeg. This document includes 4 tables: Table 1 presents the spatial indices for the 16 Manitoba communities in the most recent survey. The indices are based on a matched brand sample, and weighted with the present Consumer Price Index food weights for Winnipeg. Each of the communities is compared to base Winnipeg. Table 2 presents the average prices of a subset of the food basket for Winnipeg and the other 16 communities surveyed on a matched brand basis; Table 3 presents the spatial indices for the 16 Manitoba communities surveyed; and Table 4 presents the average prices of a subset of the food basket for these communities and Winnipeg.

This report contains general resource assessments and examines the sensitivity of the ranking of electric options to externality values obtained largely from the experiences of other jurisdictions. The aim of this primer is to improve the understanding of social costing. The document is intended to summarize the methodological foundation for the ongoing process of examining and evaluating externalities related to energy use and production in Saskatchewan. The paper covers the following topics: definition and description of social costing; categorization and description of different types of costs; decision making when costs are uncertain; comparison of the costs and benefits for different people and different generations; techniques for measuring different types of cost; approaches to decision making with social costing; and, an overview of what social costing can achieve, the limitations of the various techniques, and the suggested applications to energy options in Saskatchewan.

La Formation des débutants, qui permet aux jeunes de passer efficacement de l'école au travail, est devenue un secteur crucial pour l'économie du Canada et des autres pays industrialisés. Le Canada ne possède pas de vaste système de formation des débutants. Pour donner une vue d'ensemble des programmes existant ailleurs, on examine dans ce document un certain nombre de systèmes étrangers de formation des débutants mis en oeuvre dans plusieurs pays industrialisés importants, tels que l'Allemagne, l'Australie, le Royaume-Uni, la Suède, l'Irlande, le Danemark, les États-Unis et le Japon.

Ce répertoire offre un accès pratique aux divers types d'approches qui ont contribué avec succès à résoudre les questions touchant des groupes cibles particuliers. Un effort a été fait pour donner, pour chaque région du Canada, des exemples qui illustrent particulièrement bien les divers types d'orientations des programmes préconisés par les divers secteurs de compétence au Canada. Les programmes ont été choisis de façon à présenter un ensemble équilibré de facteurs, par exemple milieu rural par rapport à milieu urbain, champ d'application, portée large par rapport à portée restreinte, méthodes bien établies et éprouvées par rapport à méthodes innovatrices de pointe. L'accent a été mis sur les écoles secondaires ainsi que sur les élèves qui les fréquentent actuellement, mais un petit nombre de programmes d'intervention précoce et de réintégration a été inclus dans des catégories particulières. Des exemples précis ont été retenus afin d'illustrer les programmes visant expressément les groupes cibles de divers types (pour diverses raisons, femmes, jeunes autochtones, jeunes délinquants, décrocheurs scolaires et élèves susceptibles de ne pas obtenir leur diplôme), ainsi que les programmes visant l'ensemble de la population des élèves de niveau secondaire.

The MILSATCOM groups at the Defence Research Establishment Ottawa (DREO) and Communications Research Canada (CRC) conducted five week-long trials on EHF satellite communications using a Skynet 4 satellite. Tests conducted included an evaluation of ephemeris pointing angles, synchronization, bit error testing (BER) of commercial binary phase shift keying (BPSK), and the evaluation of frequency-hopped/digital phase shift keying (FH/DPSK) BER. In preparation for the experiments, a parallel hardware/software development was required and was facilitated by the use of several separate computers. This paper describes the data logging package developed for the Skynet 4 trials. The Data Logger was used as a single source for data recording and also as the experiment date and time reference for a number of other processors used in the experiment.

The Skynet extremely high frequency (EHF) trials consisted of several week-long accesses over Skynet 4A during 1993, with the whole link used to simulate an EHF downlink from a payload to a ground terminal. To conduct the trials, it was recognized that many tasks needed to be active at once, including pointing antennas, monitoring power levels, synchronization, data communications, and result logging. To shorten development time and simplify integration requirements, a distributed multiple computer processing system was chosen. This paper describes the asynchronous communications software that provided the services necessary for the distributed processing used in the trials. The software was developed using Microsoft C 6.0 on a Dell 433E running DOS 5.0 and the real-time hardware interface portion was written in assembly language.

This plan will serve as a province-wide action plan to rehabilitate and protect fisheries resources and the habitat on which they depend, to address the major problems and issues in the fisheries, and to identify priority opportunities in each recreational fishing area. The plan will also address institutional issues to reduce duplication of roles and responsibilities. Background information was obtained from a literature review; consultations with fishery experts and field staff in federal and provincial fisheries departments and with representatives of native and non-native communities at 11 locations; and a questionnaire distributed to community representatives who attended the consultations. Problems and issues addressed include declining quality of aquatic ecosystems and loss of fish habitat; loss of recreational fishery resources; stakeholder involvement and conflict; fragmentation of management and enforcement; inadequate knowledge; lack of focused education, promotion, and communication initiatives; inadequate fiscal resources; and consequences of the status quo.

N-nitrosodimethylamine (NDMA) is classified as a probable human carcinogen. Levels of NDMA between the 5 ng/L detection limit and 115 ng/L were encountered during routine monitoring of treated water from the Ohsweken water supply since monitoring began in December 1989. Following the detection of NDMA in the treated water in January 1992, an intensified monitoring program was established and the plant operation was reviewed. This report summarizes laboratory and pilot-scale results of ultraviolet degradation of NDMA and gives details on full plant-scale UV treatment. Dosage requirements, costs, and effectiveness of UV for degradation of NDMA are discussed. Water quality information for 1993 and 1994 is presented in an appendix.

The lower St. Lawrence Estuary (LSLE) is one of the most laterally stratified estuaries in the world, with complicated circulation patterns that have a large influence on the zonation and processes of the marine planktonic organisms. This study of the physical-biological interactions regulating carbon flows in the area was based on the investigation of four stations visited on four separate missions between June 1990 and July 1991 during different levels of surface production. The study explored the relationships between phytoplankton biomass, surface production, and surface and deep respiration during periods that present varying biological and physical conditions to ascertain how the variables were related to the stratification of the LSLE and to possible upstream-downstream gradients. The study also attempted to balance various euphotic and aphotic measurements of new production in the LSLE.

Stand improvement reimbursement rates to Crown Land Licensees were determined from a nonlinear regression analysis for the first time in 1988. Up to and including 1987, the reimbursement rates were based upon costs associated with pre-1983 precommercial thinning carried out by the province and administered by the Department of Natural Resources. The data compiled in this report is a culmination of 194 observations gathered from precommercial thinning saw operators between 1985 and 1990. Data analysis from 1989 onward utilized a weighted multiple regression analysis developed by the reforestation and silviculture section of the timber management branch in consultation with Forestry Canada.

Overview of the environment of the Atlantic Provinces at a particular time. The report identifies problem areas, describes important conditions and trends, and outlines the direction in which the region is headed environmentally. The central theme of the report is the relationship between human activities and environmental quality, human health, and the economy. The concept of sustainability is explored, both in terms of ecosystem sustainability, and the long-term sustainability of the current use of the environment and its resources. The report describes the environmental resource base, including ecozones, demographics, air, water, land, and wildlife; the stresses, including acid rain, dioxins and furans, wildlife and fish habitat, and environmental impact assessment; and a diagnosis for sustained use of air, water, land, special places and species, and energy. Cependant, à y regarder de plus près, on s'aperçoit que les règles électorales du Canada ne sont pas neutres à l'endroit des femmes. Comparativement à un système à représentation proportionnelle, le système majoritaire uninominal utilisé au Canada est beaucoup moins favorable à l'entrée des femmes en politique. Selon la théorie de l'effet de serre, le rejet dans l'atmosphère de grandes quantités de gaz carbonique et, de façon tout aussi importante, d'autres gaz à l'état de traces aura pour effet de réchauffer la terre. Certains climatologues et bon nombre de groupes de défense de l'environnement estiment maintenant que l'augmentation des concentrations de gaz responsables de l'effet de serre dans l'atmosphère entraînera des hausses de température suffisantes pour provoquer d'importants changements climatiques. Ce document se penche sur la question et examine les points suivants : le gaz carbonique et le climat; les sources de gaz carbonique (combustibles fossiles et déboisement); les réservoirs de gaz carbonique (végétation et océans); les preuves de l'augmentation des gaz créant un effet

Project to establish an understanding of the thermal characteristics of residential housing in Saskatchewan and to estimate the scope and cost of upgrading the thermal envelopes of existing housing. Thermal archetypes were developed to represent the existing single-detached, semi-detached, and row houses. The 13 archetypes represent different types of housing, ranging from pre-1920 stock to 1990, and categorized as either base or upgraded houses. The annual space heating energy consumption of each archetype was calculated using the HOT-2000 computer program. Three levels of thermal retrofit to the archetypes were investigated, from minor upgrading to a full retrofit that lowered house heating consumption to near R-2000 standards. The total and incremental costs of the three levels of retrofit were calculated using recent Canadian sources.

This paper reviews and extends an earlier, in-depth analysis of the effects of user charges published in 1979, examining whether the research literature of the past 14 years changes any of the conclusions. The paper summarizes and reviews the original monograph, then provides a review of relevant literature since 1979 and an assessment of its impact on the original analysis. The literature review focuses mainly on Canada and the United States but places the North American experience in an international context. The focus is mainly on hospital and physician services, as it was in the original paper.

This paper deals with the notion of capacity in congested urban transit networks in the context of dynamic transit assignment. The paper introduces four levels of capacities, the nominal capacity, the physical capacity, the comfort capacity, and the operating capacity. The approach of varying capacity is then applied to the evening peak problem. Numerical results based on simulations are used to validate the choices made.

MICROLOG 95-01544 (1 fiche)

The Forest Insect and Disease Survey has been using a geographical information system (GIS) since 1986 to help meet their mandate. This project was implemented to collect ecology and air quality related data, particularly that involved in biomonitoring. Eco-climatic data for the Pacific and Yukon Region was gathered and integrated from more than 12 cooperating provincial and federal agencies. A total of 27 data sets were input to the GIS, including acid rain indicators, biogeoclimatic zones, Canadian ecozones, Rowe's forest regions, climatic variables, and landscape and elevation data. From the resultant data sets, over 50 maps, graphs, and tables were developed addressing air pollution, pollution sources, climate, forest regions, biogeoclimatic zones, Canadian ecozones, elevation, and soil and landscapes.

Northern Ontario waterways and the land bordering them are the source of many values, among them recreation or logging. A methodology that includes geographic information system (GIS) and field photogrammetry technologies and addresses the operational requirements of resource managers was developed to identify potential areas of conflict between visual and other values and to assist in the development of alternatives for integrated resource management planning efforts. A project was conducted in Thistle Township to the north and west of Thistle Lake and Red Cedar Lake in the North Bay District. An initial GIS assessment of forested areas theoretically visible from the lakes was made and demonstration materials prepared to explain project concepts to stakeholder groups during the values assessment process and to prepare for the field exercise. Interviews were conducted with three key stakeholder groups. Potential conflict areas were identified and a detailed analysis of them was made. This report describes the methods used and provides recommendations on streamlining the process and improving the technology.

The Windsor Air Quality Study investigated the Windsor airshed characteristics for airborne toxics/carcinogenic compounds and determined personal exposure to these compounds through monitoring of outdoor and personal air quality; inventory, monitoring, and modelling of specific point and area pollutant sources; and investigation of human activity patterns. This report summarizes the available air monitoring data from the Windsor-Detroit area. The sampling techniques and analytical methods of all agencies contributing data to this study are summarized and, where possible, compared. Concentrations of pollutants of concern were compiled from several agencies involved in ambient air monitoring activities in the Windsor-Detroit area. The arithmetic mean concentration and standard deviation, the maximum and minimum, and several percentiles are presented on a site-by-site and agency-by-agency basis. The report compares annual average concentrations in Windsor of several pollutants of greatest concern with concentrations in other Ontario communities and with concentrations in other Canadian cities.

This report presents the results of a risk analysis undertaken to characterize the risks due to airborne toxics in Windsor; identify candidate substances for exposure reduction; and place the inhalation risks from outdoor air in perspective with other risks. Risk analysis for each compound consisted of identification of the range of risks associated with inhalation exposure, based on values established by leading agencies; determination of exposures in Windsor, using the mean and 90th percentile concentrations of measured outdoor air pollutants and concentrations in various microenvironments; and comparison with the guidelines for outdoor concentration limits set by a number of regulatory guides.

The Windsor Air Quality Study investigated the Windsor airshed characteristics for airborne toxic/carcinogenic compounds and determined personal exposure to these compounds through monitoring of outdoor and personal air quality; inventory, monitoring, and modelling of specific point and area pollutant sources; and investigation of human activity patterns. This report determined the relative contributions of various source sectors to the modelled air concentrations of the 21 chronic effect compounds for which both United States and Canadian emissions data were available, and the spatial distribution of the air concentrations of these compounds across the Windsor area. Modelling calculated annual average air concentrations using average emission rates from a one-year hourly meteorological data set. Annual average air concentrations were produced at 102 receptor locations that included 23 locations where air monitoring occurred, with the majority of the remaining receptors in the urban Windsor area and some receptors in the rural area surrounding Windsor. Observed air concentrations were compared with modelled values to identify the causes of any model-observer discrepancies and to rectify the prob-
